Who said Medical School isn't a Picnic?

Dean Allen S. Lichter and Samir Gupta, president of the Class of 2000

In a memorable week that saw them achieve their dreams of becoming doctors of medicine, the U-M Medical School's Class of 2000 took time to relax and revel in their accomplishments at the annual graduating class picnic, sponsored by the Medical Center Alumni Society and held at a recreation area near the University's Radrick Farms Golf Course on the sun-filled afternoon of June 8, one day before graduation.

MCAS President Jeffrey Dunn (Residency 1977) welcomed the class as the School's newest alumni; alumni pins and copies of Aequanimitus 2000, the Medical School's yearbook, were distributed. The Class of 2000 presented Allen S. Lichter (M.D. 1972), dean of the Medical School, with a beginning endowment to provide medical tuition, the first endowment fund ever established by a class on the occasion of its graduation. m
